KRAIBURG TPE hosts four days of free digital web-seminars

Directly to the (home) office with the TPE Expert Talks

The TPE Expert Talks by KRAIBURG TPE will take place between 12 and 15 October. The digital, free event offers various formats, is aimed at customers, partners, industry insiders as well as interested parties and provides its visitors with information, insights and insider knowledge.

In October, KRAIBURG TPE will be hosting a series of lectures on thermoplastic elastomers from 12 to 15 October for the first time. The agenda for the four days of the event includes over 20 web seminars, live talks, short presentations, expert discussions and product presentations. Experienced industry experts and long-standing partners will present exciting new products. The highlight of the multi-day event is an exclusive product launch.

In 2020, trade fairs, events and meetings can only be held under strict security precautions. For this reason, KRAIBURG TPE has decided to host the TPE Expert Talks, an information event for customers, industry insiders and all those interested in TPE. The goal of this event is to inform about new developments and progress without running the risk of infection. The topics on the agenda include innovations in the field of sustainable TPEs, solutions for the sports and leisure sector, Lightweight TPE, sterilizability of TPE and much more. The autumn event also offers the opportunity for a personal consultation after each session.

"For us as a company, the protection of the individual continues to have the highest priority. However, our responsibility towards customers and partners also includes continuing to provide personal counseling and first-class service - in other words, exactly what distinguishes us - in times of home office and event restrictions," summarizes Michael Pollmann, Sales
